

UNCOVERING YOUR SACRED

Path

by Louise Langley

Louise at the Trevi Fountain

As I stood at the famous Trevi fountain, bathing in the balmy heat of the glorious early Roman summer evening, I tossed my coin in to join so many others committing their wishes to water. I wondered "How could it be that in three short years so many extraordinary wishes have come true for me?" and then I smiled as I looked back to the moment, almost exactly three years before, when time stood still as my sacred path exploded into reality. Gazing at the crowd of people surrounding me now, a deep sense of great peace took hold as I wondered how many of these people were embarking upon their own sacred path right now.

How, three years ago, could I ever have imagined that such a thing as a sacred path truly existed? How could I have guessed that I would be here in Rome now, uncovering and decoding amazing facts and signs for yet another book I was writing? How could I have suspected that the events that occurred to utterly change my life on that night would take me on such a trail around the globe, from Australia to Antarctica, speaking, writing, sharing and decoding great mysteries on a colossal scale. This trail had uncovered so much, a great quest for love of the highest kind, miracles unfolding at speed as if, I merely had to know something for it to become real instantly! And, no sooner had I put pen to paper, it would become real around me. Ancient knowledge appearing in so many ways that would begin to thread a most unusual story together ... my story ... our story ... your story ... your sacred path ... For I really did begin to understand that this sacred path, a story of magic, exists for us all.

"What is my sacred path?" I hear you wonder Indeed, what is your sacred path? Could it be possible that it is something so extraordinary, so exquisite that, once you found it, touched it, your life would quite literally transform before your eyes? Could it be that the trail to discover this path, a truth withheld from you across the ages, were merely a trail that you had left for you to find in 'the perfect moment'? What if 'the perfect moment' has arrived?

"This journey has taught me that the only way to experience life is to always implicitly, and without hesitation, trust and follow your intuition, your heart, your inner guidance."

Now ... In the summer of 2006, the perfect moment was upon me. I had no idea that I was about to touch the sacred truth. As I stood on a Dublin street, in the early hours of a long night, suspended in the midst of the mist that clung to every beautiful moment that unfolded about me, this sacred path began to be revealed. I was staggered, wretched and yet touched in that moment by something so exquisite that the moments before that point in my life quite literally disappeared. I had no idea that the truth of my sacred path could be so extraordinarily beautiful. I had no idea that I could possibly be worthy of this sacred path, the beginning of which I was witnessing. And yet, with all my soul I yearned for this to be the truth, as much as I knew with all my soul that I had just touched the truth.

Where did I go from here? I knew then that the pursuit of the truth of this path in totality was the only path I could take. I had no idea where to begin as I returned to England, withdrawing from everyone and everything as so many things outside of the realms of logic began to happen to me, things that propelled me into a mysterious and magical quest of truth and love. I began to understand something so profound and yet so simple! I found my navigation-aid steer. I found the simple way of uncovering my path.

As I followed this navigational steer, the most extraordinary journey began to unfold about me. This journey has taught me that the only way to experience life is to always implicitly, and without hesitation, trust and follow your intuition, your heart, your inner guidance.

In so doing, a trail of synchronicities and synergies unfolding about you and incredible knowledge from within sets out an amazing trail for you to follow. This trail quite literally becomes the journey YOU laid out for you to complete.

You have just arrived at one point in your journey, consciously or not, where you are determined to discover your sacred truth, to uncover your sacred path.

You have the right to understand now that life is an amazing game. You have the right to know that inspiration is your dearest friend and guide and that the only truth is the truth within you. What liberation to know that you are quite literally the creator of your own journey and that the journey is always perfect. As my journey began to unfold about me, I learnt that in pursuit of the sacred truth and your sacred path, to trust all that comes to you is so critical. Those moments when your heart is telling you something, defiantly urging you to listen, and yet your head is telling you that you are crazy, those are the moments to dismiss your head. In listening to the heart, so the sacred truth can begin to be revealed to you.

As information flooded my consciousness, I diligently recorded it, stunned at the evidence that came after to substantiate what I had written! Codes and scribbling I could so easily have dismissed were fast becoming an intriguing trail!

I began to research how, across time and space, there are those who have touched the sacred truth, who have dismissed their heads and followed their hearts. So passionate have they been in their knowing of the sacred truth, that they would stop at nothing to defend it. I began to understand why...

Those such as Galileo who, in 1616, was ordered not to 'hold or defend' the idea that the Earth moves and the Sun stands still. He persisted in the pursuit of the truth, his sacred quest, and was later convicted, ordered to be imprisoned and the publication of any of his present or future works forbidden.

IMAGINE: Jailed for standing up for something you knew to be true and that would become scientific fact years later! Where would science be today if Galileo had conformed to popular opinion or belief? Why was it that Galileo so passionately defended this truth? What compelled him to speak his truth in the face of deep persecution, of conviction, of imprisonment?

Why was it that the Greek philosopher Socrates defiantly refused to abandon his sacred truth, the immortality of the soul? His passionate defence of his sacred truth was to seal his death, a truth his friends pleaded with him to abandon to save his life. Why was he prepared to so passionately defend his sacred truth in the face of his death?

Why was it then that, at this moment in my journey, I too was so prepared to declare the extraordinary sacred truth I was discovering? Can you imagine discovering knowledge so sacred from deep within you that you would stop at nothing to defend its truth? Imagine that all you needed to do in order to access this knowledge, was to trust your intuition ... as simple as that. It was as I began to trust implicitly the amazing information that was being imparted to me, that I became aware of secret codes ...

The journey began to snowball! The works of great scientists, artists, philosophers, avatars, musicians and authors were all starting to link before my startled eyes. Messages were encoded everywhere, and more amazingly, there they were around me in everything I did and saw daily, ... just as they are around you now, waiting for you to remember!

It was at that time that I realised that my journey had really begun some six months earlier than I had originally thought, on a day in December when I ventured to the uppermost turret of Edinburgh castle and, after an experience I could not explain, walked back down the stairs of the turret to a shop in the basement. Trance like, I took a ring out of the display cabinet and placed it on my finger... I had no idea in those moments what the unusual script on that ring said, the magic it held according to ancient texts and practices and the journey it would help to put into action. All I knew was that from the moment I placed it on my finger, I knew could not take it off. It was my intuition that placed that ring on my finger and my intuition that kept it there! Even though my life seemed to break around me for the six months that followed, I never took that ring off.

I invite you now to come with me on a journey of discovery over the next few months, a journey which will provide you with a glimpse of your sacred truth, the truth you always intended for you to find ... in the perfect moment. This journey will offer you a simple guide to uncover your own path, beginning with how to get in touch with your own intuitive guide and start to manifest miracles ...
